EDITOR'S NOTE

A Season for What's Next

Fall is a season of texture, depth, and renewal — a time when the world slows down and style takes on greater meaning. It's in the weight of a fine fabric, the richness of an autumn palette, and the confidence that comes from wearing something made for you.

At Henricks, we believe great style isn't about following the season, but about embracing what's next — with intention, with authenticity, and with garments that are made to last.

Here's to a more refined fall.

The blend that makes fall feel better.

ALWAYS FITS

Wool has long been the foundation of a well-dressed life. Its natural structure gives a garment shape and presence — it holds the line, resists the elements, and breathes as the day changes. Wool regulates temperature, keeping you warm when it's cold and releasing heat when things warm up, which makes it as practical as it is timeless.

Cashmere brings a different kind of magic. Its ultra-fine fibres add a softness that feels like a second skin, offering exceptional warmth without weight. Where wool gives structure, cashmere brings ease. Together, they create the perfect balance — refined, versatile and quietly luxurious.

It's a blend that elevates the everyday: a jacket with substance, a knit with comfort, a coat that feels like an embrace. Wool and cashmere aren't just fabrics for fall — they're a better way to live in it.

"Texture is the language of fall."

THE FEEL OF THE SEASON

Why wool and cashmere work so well in fall.

As the season shifts, so does the way we dress. Wool and cashmere offer an ideal balance of comfort, structure and quiet luxury — fabrics that perform beautifully, and feel even better.

Natural Warmth

Wool and cashmere insulate without bulk, regulating temperature so you stay comfortable from crisp mornings to cool evenings.

Equally at home in the office, weekend getaways or evening out, these fabrics bring understated luxury to every occasion.

“Luxury is often felt before it is seen.”

MARZONI FLANNEL

Italian cloth with depth, softness, and character.

For more than half a century, Marzoni has been recognized for its exceptional fabrics and quiet innovation. Its flannel embodies a distinctly Italian approach — refined, versatile and rich with character.

Brushed to a velvety softness, Marzoni flannel offers a tactile warmth that feels as good as it looks. The subtle nap creates visual depth, giving the fabric a richness that shifts in tone with the light and movement. It's a cloth that brings texture and dimension to a man's wardrobe, without ever feeling heavy.

Naturally insulating yet breathable, flannel is an ideal companion for the cooler months — keeping you comfortable in changing temperatures while maintaining a polished, elegant appearance. Whether in a classic charcoal, a warm tobacco, or a modern muted tone, Marzoni flannel translates perfectly from business to weekend, from city to countryside.

It's more than a seasonal fabric. It's a statement in how you live.
